

Contents

Preface and acknowledgements	vii
About the contributors	xi
Guide to structure of the book	xviii
Part 1: Background
Chapter 1 Introduction John Hall, David Pilgrim & Graham Turpin	3
Chapter 2 Engaging with the views and needs of users of psychological services Juliet Foster	20
Part 2: Contexts
Chapter 3 Psychology in context: From the First World War to the National Health Service John Stewart	39
Chapter 4 The emergence of clinical psychology in the British post-war context David Pilgrim & Nimisha Patel	52
Chapter 5 Professional organisation and communication John Hall & Michael Wang	65
Chapter 6 The political and NHS context Anne Richardson	80
Chapter 7 The development and training of the clinical psychological workforce: From probationers to practitioner doctorates Tony Lavender & Graham Turpin	93
Chapter 8 Colleagues, competitors and offspring: Relationships with other professions John Hall	111
Chapter 9 Clinical psychology at the Institute of Psychiatry and the Maudsley Hospital: The early years William Yule	125
Part 3: Psychological Roles
Chapter 10 Psychologists as testers Katherine Hubbard & Dougal Hare	141
Chapter 11 Psychologists as researchers Susan Llewelyn, Gillian Hardy & Katie Aafjes-van Doorn	154
Chapter 12 Psychologists in organisations Bernard Kat	168
Chapter 13 Psychologists as therapists: An overview Glenys Parry	181
Chapter 14 Psychologists as therapists: The development of behavioural traditions in clinical psychology Sarah Marks	194
Chapter 15 Outside the behavioural tradition: Psychodynamic, humanistic and constructivist therapies in clinical psychology David Pilgrim & Glenys Parry	208

Part 4: Work with Client Groups
Chapter 16	Towards a history of clinical child psychology Michael Berger	221
Chapter 17	Clinical psychology in adult mental health services Gillian Bowden, Fabian Davis, Kathy Nairne & Geoff Shepherd	237
Chapter 18	Intellectual disability: Making sense and making a difference Jennifer Clegg	256
Chapter 19	Neuropsychology Alan Collins, Peter Rankin & Tom McMillan	270
Chapter 20	Clinical psychology with older people Bob Woods & Cath Burley	283
Chapter 21	Clinical health psychology Paul Bennett	296
Chapter 22	Forensic clinical psychology Gisli Gudjonsson & Susan Young	309
Part 5: National and International Perspectives
Chapter 23	Challenging an anglocentric story David Griffiths & Roger Young (Wales); Carole Allan (Scotland); Chris McCusker (Northern Ireland); Alan Carr (Republic of Ireland)	325
Chapter 24	The international context of British clinical psychology Steve Melliush, Gary Latchford & Sarah Marks	349
Part 6: Reflections
Chapter 25	Overview: Recurring themes and continuing challenges David Pilgrim, Graham Turpin & John Hall	365
Appendix 1:	Timeline of events in psychology, abnormal and clinical psychology in Britain 1853–2010	379
Appendix 2:	Chairs of the Division of Clinical Psychology	387
Appendix 3:	Presidents of the British Psychological Society who were clinical psychologists, or closely involved with clinical or abnormal psychology	388
Appendix 4:	Selected workforce data	389
Index		391